Can you get facebook notifications on fitbit versa lite

Moderator edit: personal info removed Best Answer Fitbit's early smartwatches lacked some elements of the "smart" aspect. Messaging was a glaring omission early on, but in 2018, the company addressed this by rolling out messaging capabilities to the original Versa and Ionic. Now, messaging support through quick replies and voice replies come standard on several Fitbit devices. In this how-to guide, we'll take you through how to set up messaging on your Fitbit, how the feature works, which devices support it, and more. See also: Fitbit buyer's guide: Everything you need to know Fitbit messaging: How does it work? Fitbit's messaging features remain relatively rudimentary, but they're still quite useful. Unlike Wear OS, Fitbit users can't type out lengthy replies on their devices. The devices lack dedicated keyboards. Instead, Fitbit uses quick replies, which let users swiftly respond to messages through prewritten responses or emojis. Fitbit also supports audio-to-text replies, but only a handful of devices support this feature. How to activate message replies on FitbitC. Scott Brown / Android AuthorityNow that you know how Fitbit handles messaging, it's essential to know what you'll need to use it. For starters, Fitbit's messaging system is entirely reliant on notifications. You can't initiate a message on a Fitbit, but you can respond to messages received via notifications. If you don't enable notifications, you won't be able to use Fitbit's messaging features.How to switch on notifications on your Fitbit: Open the Fitbit app on your phone. Tap your profile image in the top left of the screen. Select your smartwatch or fitness tracker. Tap notifications. On this page, you can select primary apps for text messages, calendar events, and email. You can also choose individual apps you wish to receive notifications. Fitbit will display notifications for all apps that support notifications on Android, but only some apps support quick replies. These are apps that support in-notification replies on your phone. So, any app that offers the ability to reply from your phone's notification shade should work with quick replies. These include WhatsApp, Google Messages, Facebook Messenger, Slack, and other chat apps. Some social networking apps, like Twitter, also support the feature.Quick replies are automatically activated for supported apps. If you receive a notification from a supported app, you can select between five default responses, several emojis, or use a voice message to reply directly from your Fitbit.For unsupported apps, you'll still have the option to open the app on your phone by tapping open on the Fitbit notification. More reading: The best apps for your Fitbit smartwatch Which devices are supported?While more modern Fitbits include messaging support, not every device does. For example, Fitbit devices that lack a screen don't support the feature, while some of Fitbit's older models don't pack it either. According to Fitbit's documentation, the following devices are supported: Fitbit Sense Fitbit Versa 3 Fitbit Versa 2 Fitbit Versa Fitbit Versa Lite Fitbit Ionic Fitbit Luxe Fitbit Charge 5 Fitbit Charge 4 Fitbit Charge 3 Some older devices, like the Fitbit Charge 2 and Fitbit Surge, can receive text messages but do not support message replies. Fitbit also notes that the feature is only available to devices paired to an Android phone. However, those using an iPhone can still respond to a limited number of Fitbit app notifications, including "messages, cheers, taunts, and friend requests." How do I use quick replies on my Fitbit?Andy Walker / Android AuthorityEach Fitbit device handles quick replies differently. This largely depends on the display size of the tracker and UI layout.How to use quick replies on the Sense and Versa 3: Tap the notification on your watch. You can also scroll down from the top of the display to access recent notifications. Tap the text icon (three horizontal lines) to select a quick reply. Tap the emoji icon to respond with an emoji. How to use quick replies on the Luxe and Charge 5: Tap the notification on the Luxe. You can also scroll left or right in the notifications app to access recent notifications. To reply to a message, tap the text icon (three horizontal lines) to select a quick reply. Tap the emoji icon to respond with an emoji. How to use quick replies on other Fitbits: Tap the notification on your device, or swipe down from the top of the screen to see recent notifications. Tap reply or replies depending on your device and select a quick reply. You can also tap more replies or more emojis to see more options. If no reply option is available on a particular app, that app doesn't support quick replies. In addition, if no reply option is visible on your device, your Fitbit does not support messaging features. Can I edit and customize my quick replies? Thankfully, yes. Although your device comes preloaded with five useful default entries, each can be customized.How to customize your quick replies: Open the Fitbit app on your phone. Tap your profile image in the top left of the screen. Select your smartwatch or fitness tracker. Tap notifications. Tap quick replies. Tap default replies to change the universal quick replies used by all apps. If you want specific strings for specific apps, tap on the app you wish to tweak, and edit your replies accordingly. Fitbit also lets users customize the emojis used for replies. To do this, tap on default replies or select individual apps. Tap the emoji tab next to the text tab on top of the page. Tweak your emojis accordingly. Voice replies on FitbitIf you find quick replies too restrictive, the Fitbit Sense, Versa 2, and Versa 3 have a voice replies feature that uses their built-in microphones. It does a relatively good job at translating speech to text, too. This makes it an excellent reply option when out running or if you have lengthier responses in mind.How to use voice replies on the Sense, Versa 2, or Versa 3: Tap the microphone icon instead of the text or emoji icon on a notification. You will then be prompted to speak your reply. Once complete, tap send or retry to re-record your message. You can also tap undo within three seconds to cancel the message. The nifty thing about voice replies is the fact that you can switch between languages. On the Fitbit Sense and Versa 3, you can tap language to change between them. On the Versa 2, this option is hidden behind the three-dot menu icon alongside the currently selected language. Fitbit not receiving messagesJimmy Westenberg / Android AuthorityRight, now you know how to set up messaging on your Fitbit, but what do you do if the feature isn't working?A good starting point would be to reboot both your phone and Fitbit. This will give you a clean slate on which to troubleshoot any additional problems. If you're lucky, this might fix your issue. However, if you're still facing messaging issues, below are a few potential remedies. If you're not receiving messages at all, head to Settings > Apps > Fitbit. Toggle off Allow notifications for a few seconds. Toggle it back on. It's a good idea to do the same for your messaging apps. If you can now receive messages but your watch isn't prompting you, you should check if Do Not Disturb or Sleep Mode is switched on. These two settings will suppress notifications on your Fitbit, so you'll need to ensure that both are toggled off. You can find both settings in your Fitbit device's settings menu. Finally, if the previous two steps failed, you could try uninstalling the Fitbit app on your phone. Be sure that you have your login details handy — you will need to sign in to your Fitbit account after reinstallation. Do you have any issues using the messaging features on your Fitbit? Let us know in the comments section below, and we'll try our best to help. See also: The most common Fitbit problems and how to fix them 1 Update the Fitbit app on your Android and Fitbit. You'll need to use the most recent version of the app on both your phone or tablet and watch to be able to receive notifications between your phone and watch without issues. If you're experiencing a lag time between the notification on your phone and the notification on your watch, the app may not be up-to-date. To update the firmware in your watch, you need to make sure the Fitbit app on your Android has permission to run in the background, where it will download and perform your watch's update.[1] 2 Turn on Bluetooth on your Android. Swipe down from the top of your phone or tablet's screen to access the Quick Menu panel, then tap the Bluetooth icon to enable it. Alternatively, open Settings and go to Connected devices > Connection preferences > Bluetooth. Advertisement 3 Enable notification settings. Make sure you have the notification settings set to show notifications on the Lock screen by going to Settings > Apps & Notifications > Notifications > Notification on lock screen. Also make sure in Settings > Apps & Notifications > Notifications > Recent that you have enabled notifications from Fitbit. 4 Open the Fitbit app and tap your profile picture. When you open the app, you should open on the "Today" tab, but if not, use the tab markers at the bottom of your screen to change the tab. 5 Tap your Fitbit Versa 2. This will take you to the settings for your watch. 6 Tap Notifications. Follow the on-screen instructions to pair your phone and watch and turn on notifications. 7 Choose the default apps you want to use for notifications. For instance, if you want to get a notification every time someone calls you via Google Voice instead of your phone app, make sure you select Google Voice. Do this for every type of notification, like text messages, calendar, and email. 8 Tap App Notifications. You'll be able to choose which other apps can send you notifications. Doing this will enable your Fitbit Versa 2 to show you notifications from your Android; your phone will still display the notifications as well. To turn off notification alerts, you can turn on Do Not Disturb on your Android. You phone and Versa 2 will still receive notifications, but you won't be alerted to them.[2] Advertisement 1 Update the Fitbit app on your iPhone or iPad and Fitbit. You'll need to use the most recent version of the app on both your phone or tablet and watch to be able to receive notifications without issues. If you're experiencing a lag time between the notification on your phone and the notification on your watch, the app may not be up-to-date. To update the firmware in your watch, you need to make sure the Fitbit app on your phone or tablet has permission to run in the background, where it will download and perform your watch's update. To do this, open Settings, go to Bluetooth and tap the information icon next to your Fitbit's name; finally, make sure the switch next to "Share System Notifications" is on. 3 Enable notification settings. Make sure you have the notification settings set to allow notifications for phone, messages, calendar, and other apps. Go to Settings > Notifications and make sure "Show Previews" is set to "Always" or "When Unlocked." Go to each app that sends notifications, like phone, email, and calendar events, and make sure their Alerts for the Notification Center are "On." If you have other apps that you want to receive notifications from on your Versa 2, make sure you have those notifications enabled on your phone or tablet. 4 Open the Fitbit app and tap your profile picture. When you open the app, you should open on the "Today" tab, but if not, use the tab markers at the bottom of your screen to change the tab. 5 Tap your Fitbit Versa 2. This will take you to the settings for your watch. 6 Tap Notifications. Follow the on-screen instructions to pair your phone and watch and turn on notifications. 7 Choose the types of notifications you want to receive. You can choose not to receive notifications for calendar reminders but enable phone notifications. 8 Tap App Notifications. You'll be able to choose which other apps can send you notifications. To turn off notifications, you can turn on Do Not Disturb on your iPhone or iPad.
